borrow the frame

An encounter with structure that already exists and how it might hold your work.

🕒 15 MINUTES

THE MESS

1. Think of a format or routine from a completely different part of your life -- a recipe, a sports drill, a meeting format, a daily habit. Write it out as simple steps.
2. Take something you're currently working on. Try fitting it into that borrowed structure, step by step.
3. Write down what fits, what doesn't, and what surprised you.

Notice: what the borrowed structure makes easier.

NO OUTCOME REQUIRED.
