

M · MONITOR

without a label

An encounter with what you feel before you name it.

🕒 10 MINUTES

THE MESS

1. Think of a moment from the last 24 hours when you felt something but couldn't quite describe it — or when you named it quickly and moved on. Write down what happened.
2. Sit with the feeling for two minutes without reaching for a word. Notice whether there's more than one thing happening, or whether the feeling shifted as the moment unfolded.
3. Write what you can — not a label, but what it was actually like. Where you felt it. Whether it stayed steady or changed.

Notice: whether the feeling became clearer or more complicated when you gave it more room.

NO OUTCOME REQUIRED.
