

E · EXECUTE

throw it

An encounter with an action you have been postponing until conditions are more certain.

🕒 10 MINUTES

THE MESS

1. Name one thing you have been waiting to start — a conversation, a project, a decision — until you knew more, had more, or felt more ready.
2. Identify the smallest version of that action you could take today. The one that doesn't require certainty first.
3. Do it, or commit to doing it before the day ends. Don't optimize it first.

Notice: whether the waiting was about readiness or about avoiding the irreversibility.

NO OUTCOME REQUIRED.
