

S · SURRENDER

you don't get to choose what comes up

An encounter with something you planted — in a relationship, at work, in yourself — that grew into something you didn't intend.

🕒 10 MINUTES

THE MESS

1. Name one thing you worked on deliberately that produced an unexpected result. Not a failure — just not what you planned.
2. Describe what actually came up instead, as specifically as you can. Resist interpreting it.
3. Ask honestly: is what came up worse than what you planned, or just different?

Notice: whether "different from what I planned" has been living in your head as "wrong."

NO OUTCOME REQUIRED.
